ENG 589: USING PICTURE BOOKS, K-12
Course Syllabus

COURSE CREDIT: 3 semester hours of graduate credit.

PREREQUISITES: None

REQUIRED COURSE MATERIAL: Workbook, Using Picture Books, K-12 by Anne Goiran, Ed.D. 2003.

COURSE DESCRIPTION: This course will focus on the power and sophistication of picture books and how to use them across the curriculum, K-12. Picture books can be used to introduce units, create a resource of short texts, build literacy standards, and improve reading and writing skills. Using picture books enhances comprehension strategies such as making connections, developing visualization and inference through words, art, and building vocabulary. Picture books in both fiction and non-fiction genre will be explored. You will be introduced to a wide variety of picture books, how to use them in your curriculum and teaching level.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

1. Teachers will be introduced to the power of picture books, their usefulness K-12, across the curriculum, their sophistication, the use of art and words and how using them will enhance any curriculum and help improve literacy standards.
2. Teachers will be introduced to resources to choose picture books.
3. Teachers will use 6 Trait Writing schemas to select “good” picture books.
4. Teachers will review Caldecott and other award winning picture books.
5. Teachers will read and review at least 100 picture books.
6. Teachers will keep a reading log, and create a system of organizing picture books to fit their curriculum and their grade level.
7. Teachers will use literature circles to discuss and enhance their enjoyment of reading picture books.
8. Teachers will share the fun of reading with each other and the fun of reading in the classroom. They will create a list of read aloud picture books for their classroom.
